January 5, 2011

Lt. Governor Kinder, members of the Missouri Senate, our families, friends, and fellow Missourians:

Today as I stand before you and humbly accept the honor of serving as the Senate's Leader, I am hopeful. I am hopeful that we can come together and find the best solutions to the state's budget. I am hopeful that we can help put Missourians back to work. And I am hopeful that we will continue our commitment to the education of our children – along the entire education spectrum.

I thank you, my Senate colleagues, for electing me to this role and am grateful for the trust you have placed in me.

The landscape of the Senate has certainly changed over the past few years. We have watched the era of "Senate Lions" pass, and have welcomed more and more new faces to this august body.

Over the past two years, we have welcomed 7 new members and, today, we welcome 12 more members into this body of leaders. All in all, that means 19 or more than half of us have served less than two years in the Senate. But you are all now part of a strong tradition of leadership. A great deal will be expected of you over a short amount of time. But I am confident you will rise and meet the challenge of finding common-sense solutions to address the problems our state is facing today.

Our state is facing serious challenges: it is the third budget year in a row where we will begin with a budget shortfall, we need to get Missourians back to work in lasting and growing industries that pay well and offer benefits, and we must make sure that our decisions today do not harm tomorrow's vision for an educated workforce.

Our toughest challenge this year again will be the budget.

The good news is that over the last two years we have made tough decisions. As many other states have fallen off the cliff, compared to most, Missouri is in good financial standing.

To date, our state's revenue is showing signs of growth, but not much. It is forecast that we will end the fiscal year that began in July with a 3.6 percent growth in revenue. So far, we are on track to meet this projection. Unfortunately, even with this small growth over last year, it still means we are facing a $300 to $500 Million revenue shortfall for the 2012 Fiscal Year.

That shortfall comes on top of the total decline of a little more than $1.2 Billion – putting us barely above what the state collected back in Fiscal Year 2005.

When it comes to our budget, very few of the state's general revenue dollars are discretionary dollars. That means in tough budget years, like this one, it becomes even more difficult to reduce spending when certain dollars are earmarked - leaving us with little flexibility in where to cut back.

I look forward to hearing Governor Nixon's budget plan later this month. It is important that he presents a budget that only spends what the government takes in and does not rely on special legislation to pass in order to be balanced.

In the Senate, we will protect taxpayers by continuing to make tough decisions to fund our priorities without a tax increase.

There are three solutions to improving Missouri's budget outlook.

The first solution is to put people back to work in good-paying jobs with benefits. Our state's revenue is reliant on people working and participating in our economy.

I learned from an early age that a job is something to value. A job gives you a sense of worth, accomplishment and the pride of making an honest dollar for an honest day's work. Many times, a job is an opportunity that leads to another job. And in many ways, our jobs help define who we are and who we want to be.

I understand the challenges and difficulties of losing your job. After 12 years on the job for an automotive manufacturing supply company, an economic downturn and restructuring led to me losing my job. My children were young and it was incredibly stressful to not know right away how I was going to provide for my family. But that life-changing moment led me to go back to college and finish my undergraduate degree, and later a law degree. It was tough, but today I own my own law firm. Things could have gone much differently for me. But because there were other opportunities available when my first career ended abruptly, I was able to bounce back. My experience is why making sure other Missourians have job opportunities available to them is so important to me.

Unfortunately, for too many Missourians, there is a void in their lives when it comes to work. Rather than feeling a sense of accomplishment, they face rejections or silence. It's not because of them or anything they have done, it's because there simply are not the opportunities available to them that should be. And that is unacceptable.

It's unacceptable that of the more than 3 Million Missourians that make up our state's work force, more than 280,000 have been out of work for the past year and a half. It is also unacceptable that underemployment has more than doubled to 5 percent from 2007 to 2009.

Missourians want results and we're going to give them results.

This year, we will pass reforms to help put Missourians back to work in good paying jobs with benefits. We will put Missourians back to work by enabling all employers to invest in working families rather than government growth, improving employers' ability to hire and retain quality workers, making sure employees can't be personally sued for honest accidents at work, and ensuring an employee's liberty when it comes to joining or leaving a union.

We will pass a bill capping the Corporate Franchise Tax. We will pass a bill restoring balance to the Missouri Human Rights Act and Whistleblower provisions. We will pass a bill reversing judicial activism in the Workers' Compensation System. And we will pass a bill making Missouri a Right to Work state.

Legislation filed in the Senate this year would cap the maximum amount of franchise tax liability at $2 Million allowing employers to invest in hiring new employees instead of growing government through higher taxes. This move would encourage investment by large corporations in Missouri while preserving revenue neutrality.

Other legislation filed this year would improve employers' ability to hire and retain quality workers by ending lawsuit abuses. The bill would bring state law in line with federal human rights laws, allowing employers to invest more in jobs rather than spending money on lawsuit abuses and their increased attorneys' fees.

Another piece of legislation filed in the Senate would restore protections for individual employees from personal lawsuits when companies should be held responsible. Missouri employees and employers face higher risks due to a decision last fall that says co-workers can be sued for their role in workplace injuries, even when it was shown to be an honest accident. By reversing this bad decision, Missouri employees will no longer be at risk of personal lawsuits stemming from workplace injuries and will no longer have to seek insurance to protect against lawsuits if an accident were to occur.

And Senate Bill 1 would secure certainty in take-home pay of every working family in Missouri by making sure employees only join unions and pay dues if they want to – rather than as a condition of their job. By becoming a Right to Work state, we will help reduce our unemployment rate. Unemployment is lower in the 22 states - six of them our neighbors - that have adopted Right to Work laws. Numbers from the Bureau of Labor Statistics show that from 1999 to 2009, Right to Work states have added 1.5 Million private sector jobs for a 3.7 percent increase while non Right to Work states lost 1.8 Million jobs over the same decade, for a decline of 2.3 percent. It's time to end the age-old animosity between business and labor and, instead, work together to do what is best for the employer and the employee. That means allowing for personal liberty and the free market to prevail in Missouri's marketplace - so that Missourians can go back to work.

The failure to solve these issues is not an option, as Missourians deserve to have job opportunities rather than unfulfilling visits to a local Career Center.

Our second solution is that we must recognize that the best economic development tool is an educated workforce.

We will continue our commitment to provide world-class educational opportunities to our citizens – along the entire education spectrum.

Since the new school funding formula took place, we have injected an additional $552 Million in K through 12 education and more than $1.2 Billion total including our additional investments in higher education, scholarships and early childhood learning.

This year, we will continue our commitment to education by working hard to maintain K through 12 school funding at the same level as last year. Every student should have access to an accredited school – so that no matter where they live they have an opportunity for a world-class education.

We will also work to make college and other post-high school educational opportunities more affordable and available to students. We hope the Governor will join us in this effort, rather than again slashing funding for ACCESS Missouri scholarships and virtual school programs.

The third solution to our budget is to continue to reduce the size and scope of state government so taxpayers can afford to sustain it.

We must consider every possible way to make government smaller and more efficient – whether that is through more control, alterations or deletions.

Rebooting Government is not a short-term program. We have an once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to truly examine and reshape every aspect of state government that could set Missouri on a sustainable, long-term path.

Last year, we began the Rebooting Government initiative and had several early successes saving taxpayers millions of dollars - but we can and will do more.

That is why I am asking every Missourian to share their ideas on how to reboot Missouri state government through a feature on the Missouri Senate website. I especially hope to hear from those on the front lines of state government because their insight can be the most helpful.

Submissions may be anonymous and every idea submitted will be considered. Starting next week, senators will meet in working groups to consider your ideas and will report final recommendations to the entire Senate on January 19th. Now is the time to be heard – please submit your idea today.

Missourians can also expect us to be accountable when it comes to how their tax dollars are spent. This year, the work of a new committee will begin. The members of that committee will be tasked with examining every state department and division, the way they operate, and how they spend taxpayer dollars. The panel will be the Senate Committee on Governmental Accountability.

As we work on these solutions to our budget, many other issues will also come before us this year. Our work will be difficult. The days will be long and our families and friends will have made substantial sacrifices in order for us to be able to serve. We thank you for this and would like to recognize all of you now. Would our families and friends please stand now to be recognized.

As we enjoy our time with family and friends today and this evening with the pomp and circumstance the occasion brings, it is important for us to remember the work that lies ahead of us. Prepare yourself for tough budget decisions. Remember your neighbor who is unable to find work. Think of our children's educational futures and remind your constituents that their voice will be heard and the spending of their taxpayer dollars held accountable.

With preparation, cooperation and hard work I believe we can secure a promising future for the people of Missouri. A future Missouri that is full of opportunity. A future Missouri where the American Dream is again alive and well. And a future Missouri where families can thrive.

As President Reagan said in 1984, "In this springtime of hope, some lights seem eternal; America's is."

I believe the same is true for Missouri today.

Knowing that all 33 of us share these goals, I again find myself hopeful.

Thank you.

FIRST REGULAR SESSION

THIRD DAY—MONDAY, JANUARY 10, 2011

---

The Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

President Kinder in the Chair.

Reverend Carl Gauck offered the following prayer:

“When the cares of my heart are many, your consolations cheer my soul.” (Psalm 94:19)

Almighty God, our concerns are many today. We are thankful for safe travel for us and staff. We deal with the changes and chances of life as Representative Giffords fights for hers. We don't understand such evil and violence but turn to You to comfort and help us find ways to deal with such tragedy. We pray for her family and families of victims of the shooting and ask for Your comfort and healing. We pray for those who enforce the law that they may do so with courage and wisdom in their serving. We pray for legislators and us who pass the laws that we may do so seeking what is most helpful and ensure the safety of our people. May Your steadfast love “...be our rock and refuge,” and guide us through these difficult days. In Your Holy Name we pray. Amen.

Senator Rupp offered Senate Resolution No. 26, regarding the Sixtieth Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ladlie, Truxton, which was adopted.

Senator Cunningham offered the following resolution:

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 27

WHEREAS, attorneys general from 13 states sued the federal government on March 23, 2010, claiming the landmark health care reform bill is unconstitutional. The amended complaint currently features 20 state plaintiffs, with the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) joining as a co-plaintiff on behalf of its members nationwide; and

WHEREAS, the lawsuit filed and joined by a total of 20 attorneys general includes and asserts:

- (1) A Commerce Clause claim;
- (2) A Tenth Amendment sovereignty violation for forcing states, among other things, to expand Medicaid coverage;
- (3) A direct tax violation for the one-size-fits all penalty if a person fails to purchase health insurance; and
- (4) A violation of Article 4, Section 4 of the United States Constitution because "the Act deprives [the States] of ... their right to a republican form of government"; and

WHEREAS, the lawsuit asks the bill be declared unconstitutional because "the Constitution nowhere authorizes the United States to mandate, either directly or under threat of penalty, that all citizens and legal residents have qualifying health care coverage"; and

WHEREAS, the lawsuit also claims the health care legislation violates the Tenth Amendment of the United States Constitution, which says the federal government has no authority beyond the powers granted to it under the Constitution, by forcing the states to carry out its provisions but not reimbursing them for the costs; and

WHEREAS, the lawsuit also asserts that the states cannot afford the new law because the health care legislation will add millions of people to state Medicaid rolls, costing some states more than one billion dollars over the next ten years in increased Medicaid expenditures; and

WHEREAS, according to an attorney representing the 20 attorneys general joining in the lawsuit, those state attorneys general "are convinced that the federal health care legislation is fundamentally flawed as a matter of constitutional law, that it exceeds the scope of proper constitutional authority of the federal government and tramples upon the rights and prerogatives of states and their citizens"; and

WHEREAS, on July 7, 2010, Missouri Lieutenant Governor Peter Kinder sued members of the Obama Administration responsible for enforcing the provisions of the federal health care reform law. The lawsuit challenges those provisions of the federal health care reform law which actually reduce Missourians access to affordable health care and which violate the Missouri Constitution and the United States Constitution; and

WHEREAS, under the federal legislation, beginning in 2014, most Americans will be required to carry health insurance, either through an employer or government program or by purchasing it themselves. Those Americans who refuse to carry such health insurance will face penalties from the Internal Revenue Service; and

WHEREAS, an overwhelming majority of 71% of Missourians supported the passage of Proposition C in a 2010 General Election in Missouri that protects Missourians from being penalized for refusing to purchase private health insurance or infringe upon the right to offer or accept direct payment for lawful health care; and

WHEREAS, according to the American Legislative Exchange Council, at least 42 states are attempting to limit, alter, or oppose some of the federal legislation's provisions through state constitutional amendments or laws, with many of the proposals seeking to keep health insurance coverage optional for individuals and exempt employers from penalties if they don't offer coverage for workers; and

WHEREAS, all other attorneys general in the nation have joined the suit voluntarily without legislative action:

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the members of the Missouri Senate, Ninety-sixth General Assembly, First Regular Session, hereby call on Missouri Attorney General Chris Koster to file an independent lawsuit, join Lieutenant Governor Peter Kinder's lawsuit, or join the 20 other state attorneys general from across the nation in challenging the constitutionality and validity of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, the federal health care legislation, and to aggressively defend the validity of Proposition C as voted on by the people of Missouri in a 2010 Missouri General Election; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Secretary of the Missouri Senate be instructed to prepare a properly inscribed copy of this resolution for Missouri Attorney General Chris Koster.

Senator Pearce offered Senate Resolution No. 28, regarding Gilbert Lee Powers, Warrensburg, which was adopted.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS

The Joint Committee appointed to wait upon His Excellency, Governor Jay Nixon, escorted the Governor to the dais where he delivered the State of the State Address to the Joint Assembly:

State of the State Address
Governor Jeremiah W. (Jay) Nixon

Thank you, Legislative Leaders; Judges of the Missouri Supreme Court; Lieutenant Governor Kinder; state officials; members of the General Assembly; members of my cabinet; and my fellow Missourians.

I'd like to thank my wife Georganne, and our sons, Jeremiah and Will, for their strength and support every day.

Because every day, we are reminded that the world we live in can be a dangerous place.

From Afghanistan to Arizona, there is no shortage of violence and conflict.

Fortunately, there is no shortage of heroes ready to step up to defend others, and the freedoms we hold so dear.

One of them is here with us tonight.

Perry Coy is a member of the Greatest Generation.

His acts of bravery during the Second World War earned him three Purple Hearts, the Bronze Star and the Silver Star. And just last month, I was proud to present him with the French government's highest decoration for valor: the Legion of Honor.

Fresh out of Bolivar High School, Perry Coy joined the Army. The Allies had just landed in Normandy, and from the moment he set foot on French soil, he was in the thick of it. He fought through the Ardennes Forest in France and into the heart of the Third Reich.

Along the way, Staff Sergeant Coy braved enemy fire to pull back a wounded medic. And he took out a nest of Nazi gunners raining hellfire on the GIs serving beside him.

Certain, special people take an oath to serve. They may wear the uniform of our armed forces or our police, our firefighters or our state troopers. But they are alike in one fundamental way.

Like Staff Sergeant Coy, they have a spirit that compels them to run toward trouble – not away from it.

They put themselves in harm's way so that we might stay safe.

Out where the ice is thin and the storm rages...where the bombs burst and the bullets fly... that's where you'll find them.

On behalf of every man and woman who has ever worn a uniform of service, will Staff Sergeant Perry Coy please stand and accept the humble thanks of our state.

Perry Coy grew up in the Great Depression, fought the Nazis at the young age of 19, and came through it all an optimist.

With faith in God, faith in the future, and faith in himself, he married his sweetheart, Mary Lou, raised a family and started his own business, right here in Jefferson City.

He personifies the values that have made this nation great in war, and in peace.

Courage.

Tenacity.

Sacrifice.

Hard work.

And last, but surely not least, optimism.

The faith that no matter how difficult things are today, our best days lie ahead.

Times are tough.

Too many folks can't make ends meet, can't find the jobs they want, or worry they'll lose the jobs they have.

But even in these tough times, I'm optimistic.

I'm optimistic because I know that by working together ... focusing on shared values ... and putting progress above politics ... brighter days are ahead for the Show-Me State.

Together, we're fighting every day, for every job.

We're fighting for every worker who needs a new skill to compete.

We're fighting for every veteran looking for work.

We're fighting for every student who dreams of college and a career.

We're fighting every day for every small business on Main Street.

We're fighting every day for every established business that wants to expand.

And we're fighting every day for every new business that wants to set up shop in the Show-Me State.

My focus is crystal clear.

By fighting every day for every job, we are turning this economy around.

The recession that began three years ago cast a long shadow across our nation.

Millions of Americans are still unemployed.

And while there are signs that our economy is beginning to turn the corner, I won't be satisfied until all Missourians can provide for their families.

How will we do it?

By fighting hard every day for every job.

By making government smarter and more efficient.

By investing in strong communities to attract and keep good jobs, and by balancing our budget without raising taxes.

There are already signs that our hard work and fiscal discipline are paying off.

The number of Missourians filing new unemployment claims is down 17 percent, year over year.

Personal income grew last year, and is expected to keep on growing this year.

November and December revenues were up, indicating that people are cautiously beginning to spend.

That's good news for our economy in the short-term, and bodes well for the long-term.

Make no mistake: the national recession hit Missouri hard.

But after losing jobs back in 2008 and 2009, we turned the corner in 2010, and are poised for job growth this year.

We will continue to be aggressive and relentless, fighting every day for every job. And we'll continue to be aggressive and relentless in making government smarter and more efficient.

We've kept our fiscal house in order with prudent financial controls, rigorous cost reductions, and smarter, more efficient government.

That's earned Missouri a Triple-A credit rating – the best you can get – from all three rating agencies. We're one of the few states in the nation that can make that claim.

It's a big vote of confidence in our state, and saves taxpayers millions of dollars a year in interest.

Compare that to what's going on in other states.

- Texas has a $15 billion deficit;
- Kansas hiked its sales tax last year;
- New Jersey's got a $54 billion pension deficit; and

- Illinois just raised personal and corporate income taxes.

Now look at our state.

Fiscal responsibility is a value we share here in the Show-Me State.

With the cuts included in my budget tonight, I will have reduced government spending by more than $1.8 billion since I took office.

I'll have cut state payroll by over 3,300 positions.

All across state government, a leaner workforce is doing more with less.

These decisions are never easy, but they are necessary.

And because we've been frugal, we have money to invest in the things that matter most to Missourians: jobs, education, health care, and law enforcement.

We've also got to grow our economy, creating a climate where the entrepreneurial spirit can thrive.

That spirit is alive and well in Missouri's small businesses that are mighty engines of job growth.

To help them move forward, we eliminated the franchise tax on 16,000 small businesses in 2009.

We created a small business loan fund to spur investment and job growth.

With us tonight are three outstanding Missouri entrepreneurs who are growing their own success.

With a $25,000 small business loan, Kelly Burke bought new equipment at his saw mill in Marionville and hired three more workers. Burke Timber is now a diversified business, producing lumber, hardwood floors, pallets and railroad ties.

Marina Remmers used her small business loan to buy commercial printing equipment. She moved her fledgling design company out of her basement and into a storefront in Bethany – and quadrupled her sales.

Chris Heston in Columbia used his state loans to expand his woodworking business and hire another worker. His wooden toys won a Parents Choice Award in 2010.

America was built on the dreams of solitary self-starters like these, with the moxie to invest in themselves.

Please give these home-grown entrepreneurs a big hand.

Cynics say that such small wins don't add up to much.

Cynics don't build things.

Optimists do.

Every job we add matters.

It matters to the person who gets the job.

It matters to their families and communities.

And it matters to Missouri.

Fighting every day for every job, we are turning this economy around.

To compete for 21st Century jobs, we need a highly skilled and well-trained workforce. Our Training for Tomorrow and Caring for Missourians initiatives are preparing thousands more workers for the careers of tomorrow.

We've invested millions in training workers to meet the growing demand in fields like computer technology, clean energy, automotive technology and health care.

Much of that training is taking place at our excellent community colleges, where the link between education and employment has always been strong.

Moberly is training LPNs to become RNs – boosting their earning capacity.

St. Louis is training workers to repair hybrid cars.

Crowder has doubled the number of grads from its EMT program.

We've also invested $40 million in training more than 1,000 doctors, dentists, nurses and other professionals through our Caring for Missourians initiative. With the booming demand for health care, they'll be ready to step into careers the minute they graduate.

That's why this year, I am expanding Caring for Missourians to provide more opportunities for nursing students at our four-year schools.

I ask the Legislature to join me in making this critical investment in our health, and the health of our economy.

Last year, I said that we needed to bring broadband to every corner of our state. We all know that technology drives today's job market. We live in a high-speed, digital world, where the most tech-savvy, early adapters will succeed.

Soon, 88 Missouri counties will be better connected, at faster speeds, to each other and to the world.

High-speed broadband will have a dramatic impact on our economy, and on our quality of life.

It will connect tens of thousands of homes in rural Missouri to a network of vital community services like fire and police, schools and hospitals, libraries and government.

For a family doc in Lancaster, it means real-time access to specialists in St. Louis.

For students in DeKalb County, it will widen the gateway to infinite online resources for research and class work, both at home and at school.

For cattlemen in Texas County, it will bring faster access to new markets in Brazil and Japan.

The competition for federal funds was steep. But our MoBroadbandNow partnership was a stunning success.

More than $260 million will be coming to Missouri, which in turn will generate tens of millions of dollars in new investment, and create thousands of new jobs.

We're fighting every day for jobs for our veterans.

Last summer, I visited our troops in Iraq, Kuwait and Afghanistan.

And everywhere I went, I heard the same question: "Will there be a job for me when I come home?"

Tonight, I'm pleased to report that our efforts helped hundreds of veterans find jobs last year.

One year ago, I announced the "Show-Me Heroes" job initiative to help our veterans quickly regain their footing in civilian life. More than 1,000 Missouri employers stepped up to take the Show-Me Heroes pledge to give veterans first crack at a job interview.

I'd like to thank each and every employer who took the Show-Me Heroes pledge and hired a veteran, and I urge every employer in our state to do the same.

One of these employers is here tonight.

Tacony Manufacturing, which makes vacuum cleaners in St. James, took the Show-Me pledge and hired three veterans. The company also took advantage of our Work Ready Missouri program, which retrains unemployed workers to compete in today's economy.

Please give a hand to the Show-Me Heroes employers at Tacony: Nancy Montgomery and John Kaido.

Even during these challenging times, we're making steady progress in driving job growth in the short term, and laying the foundation for economic strength in the long term.

Because of our hard work of the past two years, major companies have announced plans to bring thousands of jobs to our state, including:

300 jobs at Unisys in St. Louis;

400 jobs at Sabreliner in Perryville;

500 jobs at Expedia in Springfield;

500 jobs at Jet Midwest in Kansas City;

and 800 jobs at IBM in Columbia.

And there's more.

Nordic Windpower USA, is relocating from California to Kansas City. It plans to invest $16 million and create 200 jobs, making wind turbines that produce clean, renewable energy.

Express Scripts is investing $73 million to expand in St. Louis. That will preserve more than 1,000 jobs, and create 150 more.

Pioneer Hi-Bred has broken ground on a $55 million soybean research plant in New Madrid County, creating 50 new jobs and helping thousands of Missouri farmers grow better beans.

Going forward, we will fight every day to help established Missouri businesses grow, and help new ones take root.

We're going to make things in Missouri, and keep the "P" for products in GDP.

Products like:

Boots at Redwing in Potosi;

Batteries at Energizer in Maryville;

Windows at Quaker Windows in Freeburg;

Aluminum at Noranda in Marston;

Engine parts at Bodine in Troy;

Bullets and brakes, aircraft and appliances.

And Missouri will keep on building things, and that includes automobiles.

For a hundred years, Missouri has been an automotive state.

The industry pumps billions of dollars into our economy, and supports nearly 26,000 Missouri jobs.

But as I stood here one year ago, those jobs were in peril.

There was real concern that Ford's Claycomo plant might be the latest casualty of the 20-year decline of the U.S. auto industry.

So last summer, I called the General Assembly into special session to strengthen Missouri's automotive industry.

We fought for every man and woman whose job was on the line.

And I'm proud to announce that working together, we won that fight.

Yesterday, I inked a deal with the Ford Motor Company that guarantees thousands of jobs, $400 million of new capital investment, and a bright future for the Ford plant in Claycomo.

With us tonight to celebrate this partnership is Ford's director of strategic planning, Steve Lewis.

Steve, please stand up and say hello.

It sure feels nice to be at the wheel when the U.S. auto industry turns a corner.

Ford's commitment will help keep thousands of hard-working Missourians on the job at Claycomo, and at automotive suppliers in Hannibal, Nixa, Perryville, Joplin, Mexico – and every corner of our state.

And it's proof positive of what we already know: that the best darn workers in America are right here in the Show-Me State.

We've got some here with us tonight. Let's give them all a round of applause.

Missouri's workforce is one of our greatest assets.

And it's one of the reasons companies like Ford want to come to the Show-Me State, and stay in the Show-Me State.

But to be competitive, we constantly need to raise the level of our game.

As I listen to Missouri leaders in business, labor and education, I hear the same thing again and again: "We must make it easier for business to do business in Missouri."

They tell me that while we've made good use of our economic development tools to create jobs in the past, some of our incentives are outdated and need to be replaced.

Even the best tools need sharpening from time to time.

The feedback from our business experts is the foundation of my Compete Missouri jobs initiative. Compete Missouri is focused on providing smarter business incentives to drive job growth, and sharpening our competitive edge.

First, we will consolidate our six current business incentives, and roll them into one. To qualify for these incentives, companies will have to provide good-paying jobs, and give their employees access to health care. For the first time, we'll give an extra bump to established Missouri companies, and offer added incentives to small business owners.

Second, we will roll our three worker training programs into one, and align it with our Compete Missouri incentives. Worker training assistance will be available to businesses as small as Ardent Outdoors, which employs 15 people in Macon, and as large as Boeing, which employs thousands.

Third, my budget for 2012 provides an additional $5 million for job training. That will give employers more resources to maintain a highly skilled workforce, and sharpen their competitive edge.

That's good for business, good for our workers and great for our economy.

Every business in Missouri needs reliable, affordable energy to grow and prosper.

And every Missouri family needs reliable, affordable energy to heat and cool their homes.

In November, I announced a historic agreement that will transform the economy of our state – creating thousands of jobs and benefitting millions of Missouri consumers of electric power.

That agreement put the wheels in motion for the construction of a second, state-of-the-art nuclear power plant in Callaway County.

Missouri has some of the lowest electric rates in the nation. That's attractive to businesses and families. But as our energy needs grow, we need to be looking now for new sources of clean, abundant and affordable power.

Building a second nuclear plant will create thousands of good-paying jobs for all our construction trades: iron and sheet metal workers; carpenters and cement masons; boilermakers and bricklayers; plumbers and pipefitters; teamsters and laborers; electrical workers and operating engineers.

They built Callaway One. And they will build Callaway Two.

As we move ahead on Callaway Two, we must make sure that we protect the interests of Missouri ratepayers – and their pocketbooks. That is why my budget includes more funding for a strong office of public counsel.

Building the next generation of nuclear power plants. Advancing the frontiers of biotechnology. The 21st Century economy is knowledge-based, and the best jobs will belong to those with the best education.

Education is a lifelong journey that begins at birth.

That's why my budget for 2012 provides funding for programs to get our youngsters off to a good start, like First Steps, Head Start, and Early Childhood Special Education.

And we must continue to invest in young minds from the day our children enter their first classrooms, to the day they accept their diplomas.

So even in a difficult year, we will protect our investment in K-12 classrooms.

As you know, states received additional federal funds, to be allocated to school districts this year.

But in spite of receiving this money, some states are making cuts to their K-12 classrooms.

Not in Missouri.

In Missouri, we're partnering with our school districts to allow this money to be used to keep stable funding for our K-12 classrooms – not only for fiscal year 2011, but also for fiscal year 2012.

In the next ten years, Missouri student achievement must rank in the nation's top ten, if we expect to compete for the best jobs in the global economy.

How will we accomplish that?

Hard work, high standards and higher expectations.

It's an ambitious goal.

But as any parent or teacher will tell you, children will rise to meet our expectations.

And we must do more to help students make the leap from high school to college.

For too long, too many excellent Missouri high school students have been unable to get A+ scholarships – through no fault of their own – simply because their schools weren’t designated as A+ schools.

That’s just not fair.

Every good student in Missouri deserves the opportunity to go to college – whether they live in the urban core in St. Louis or Kansas City, or down a country road in the Bootheel.

I’m talking about students like Alicen Brown and Willie Love.

Alicen is a junior at Southwest High School in Kansas City.

She’s the president of the student body, a member of the district’s scholars committee and a peer mediator.

She gets good grades and has already taken courses that will count toward her college degree.

But Alicen can’t get an A+ scholarship because Southwest High has not been designated an A+ school.

That’s just not fair.

Willie Love is a senior at Carnahan High School in St. Louis.

He’s a scholar-athlete with honors in baseball, football and basketball.

He’s vice-president of a community service club at school, and works with youngsters at the Demetrius Johnson football camp.

Willie’s just the kind of young achiever that A+ scholarships are intended to help.

But because his school isn’t designated as an A+ school, he can’t even apply.

That’s just not fair.

Good students like Alicen and Willie deserve an equal opportunity to succeed – no matter what high school they attend.

I call on every member of the legislature to extend our A+ program so that outstanding students all across our state are guaranteed access to A+ college scholarships.

In recognition of their outstanding achievements, please welcome Alicen Brown and Willie Love.

My budget for 2012 also includes millions of dollars for Missouri’s most successful college scholarship programs, including:

Bright Flight, to help keep our top students at our excellent Missouri institutions;

Access Missouri, which serves students with the greatest financial need; and A+, which has helped more than 50,000 students afford and attend college.

And to improve our students’ preparation for careers in science and technology, we’ll give a $500 bonus to A+ and Access Missouri recipients who score well on Advanced Placement exams in math and science.

Because job prospects and lifetime earnings are tied directly to education, we’ve got to lift our aspirations for higher education as well.

Today, just 35 percent of Missouri adults hold college degrees.

We need to kick that number up to 60 percent if we want to compete for the best jobs in the new economy.

How?

By bringing the dream of a college education within reach for more Missouri families.

College affordability has been a top priority of mine since Day One.

So while tuition soared by double digits around the nation, Missouri schools kept tuition and fees flat for two years running. Even if some schools impose modest tuition increases next year, we’ll have protected Missouri families from the sharp tuition spikes seen in other states.

And the response has been overwhelming. College enrollment jumped by 10,000 students last year, hitting record highs at more than half of Missouri’s universities, and boosting applications at all of them.

That’s progress.

Creating jobs.

Balancing the budget without raising taxes.

Investing in our future.

Now let me tell you about what we're doing to make government smarter and more efficient.

- By merging the Highway Patrol and Water Patrol, we've kept the same number of troopers on our roads and waterways with less bureaucracy. Savings to taxpayers: $3 million.
- We've sold government cars, cut mileage reimbursements and used technology to drastically reduce state travel. Savings to taxpayers: close to $7 million in the next two years.
- We've gotten rid of unused office space, consolidated the state health and agriculture labs and renegotiated building leases. Savings to taxpayers: more than $5 million.
- We've cut state energy bills by two percent, on top of last year's 5.6 percent. Savings to taxpayers: $3 million.
- And we've reformed and modernized the state pension system, which will keep it solvent now, and for years to come.

But we must do more this year.

A bi-partisan tax credit commission spent four months reviewing Missouri's 61 tax credit programs. They looked at which credits are giving taxpayers a good return on their investment – and which are not.

I ask the members of the Legislature to allow this commission to present its recommendations at open hearings in the House and Senate.

We should give the commission's report serious and full consideration.

Because Missourians work hard for their money.

We owe it to taxpayers to make sure they get the best bang for their buck.

Creating jobs.

Balancing the budget without raising taxes.

Investing in the future.

Making government smarter and more efficient.

All of these things are essential to the well-being of our state.

But there are special moments when, touched by the better angels of our Nature, our work rises to meet a higher standard. At those moments, what we do here transforms lives.

January 1, 2011, was a landmark day for thousands of families across Missouri.

That was the day insurance companies had to start providing meaningful coverage for the diagnosis and treatment of children with autism.

Some day, when we look back at our shared history, at the battles won and lost in these chambers, this piece of legislation will be one of our landmarks, as well.

Last October, we took another bold step to help families caring for loved ones with other types of developmental disabilities, like Down Syndrome and cerebral palsy.

The Partnership for Hope is designed to keep families together, and improve their quality of life by providing support for their loved ones at home.

I'd like to introduce you to a young man sitting in the back gallery.

His name is Nick Ayers. He's 31 and lives in Lincoln County with his parents, Russell and Janet.

Nick has cerebral palsy. He can do a lot on his own, but he needs a hand preparing meals, managing personal business, and staying safe.

Janet and Russell want their son to live a full and happy life as an independent member of their community. But as they get older, they worry that keeping up with Nick will become a real challenge.

Like too many Missouri families, the Ayers had been on a waiting list for support services for years ... and years...and years. Today, we're providing those services for them, and hundreds more families – at home, at a fraction of the cost of institutional care.

Please join me in welcoming Nick, Janet and Russell Ayers, as representatives of Missouri's life-changing Partnership for Hope.

Last year, we passed historic DWI legislation with strong bipartisan support.

That new law is making our highways safer for everyone.

With us tonight are the superintendent of the Highway Patrol, Colonel Ron Replogle, and Sergeant Blaine Adams from Troop E in Poplar Bluff.

Sergeant Adams has made an amazing 1,060 DWI arrests – more than any other current member of the patrol.

1,060 DWI arrests.

Can you imagine how many lives this one Trooper has saved?

For its exceptional record of educating the public, and protecting Missourians from drunk drivers, the Patrol received the national 2010 Outstanding Law Enforcement Agency Award from Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Colonel Replogle and Sergeant Adams, on behalf of all the men and women of the Highway Patrol, please stand and accept the gratitude of your state.

But we must do more to protect the health of our citizens.

This year, my budget will provide good nutrition for thousands of house-bound seniors who rely on home-delivered meals.

Our seniors also need help paying for their medicine.

We have a program to help low-income seniors and people with disabilities keep up with the skyrocketing costs of prescription drugs.

The Missouri Rx program is a lifeline for more than 200,000 Missourians every year.

But Missouri Rx is set to expire this summer.

We cannot let that happen.

My budget includes funds for the Missouri Rx program, but the Legislature must extend it.

Nobody should be forced to choose between paying for medicine and putting food on the table.

Nobody.

I urge the members of the General Assembly to reauthorize this vital program and send it to my desk.

There's another piece of the people's business that requires our attention: ethics reform.

The people of Missouri need to know that their elected representatives are working in the public interest – and not for personal gain.

Right now, anyone can write a check for any amount of money, and tip the balance of an election.

That is corrosive to our democracy.

We need to set strict limits on campaign contributions that are undermining the sovereignty of the people, and subverting the fundamental principle of free and fair elections.

We need meaningful ethics reform this year.

In the past year, I've visited businesses and schools, farms and factories, hospitals and veterans homes from Bethany to Bernie, and seen a lot of countryside in between.

One of the many things that make Missouri such a special place to live is our wonderful system of state parks. There's a quiet beauty to Missouri that weaves its own kind of magic.

That may explain why I've never lived anywhere else.

Never wanted to.

Like thousands of Missourians, I grew up hunting and fishing, hiking and canoeing with my Mom and Dad. Georganne and I have continued that outdoor tradition with our family.

While visiting our state parks last year, Georganne and I saw Missouri's first State Parks Youth Corps in action.

At a time when it's been especially tough for young people to find jobs, the State Parks Youth Corps put money in the pockets of more than 1,000 young workers – at no cost to the state.

The National Association of State Park Directors gave our State Parks Youth Corps its top award for innovation in 2010. And I'm pleased to report that the Youth Corps will put hundreds more kids to work in our parks this summer.

Believe me, those young folks worked hard.

We saw them rebuilding stone walls at Roaring River, painting cabins at Montauk, and blazing trails at Cuivre River and Rock Bridge.

And while they were at it, they learned valuable life and work skills:

Show up on time;

Do your best;

and get the job done.

Working outside all summer long, they also gained a new respect and appreciation for Nature.

If you look up in the balcony, you'll see them in their green T-shirts.

Please welcome the members of Missouri's first State Parks Youth Corps.

This is a critical time for Missouri.

The shadows of the recession are lifting.

The bright rays of recovery are gathered on the horizon.

Now, more than ever, Missouri needs its leaders to focus on what is most important:

Creating jobs.

Making government smarter and more efficient.

Investing in strong communities;

And balancing the budget without raising taxes.

The people of Missouri want problem-solvers, not politicians.

The people of Missouri want results, not rhetoric.

Because as we've seen in Washington, when politicians cling to ideology, and kick common sense to the curb, when they focus on the party line and not the bottom line... nothing gets done.

Missouri is blessed with a long and strong tradition of bipartisanship.

And in Missouri, we get things done.

Why?

Because here in the heartland, we share common values and common goals.

We want the opportunity to work hard at work worth doing, whether it's building the next generation of fuel-efficient trucks, or growing better soybeans to feed a hungry world.

We want our children to get a first-rate education that prepares them to compete for the best jobs in the global economy.

We want safe, strong communities where neighbors help neighbors.

We want a vibrant and prosperous economy, where "Made in America" is still the gold standard – whether it's stamped on an F-150 or an F-15.

And we make them both, right here in the Show-Me State.

For as long as I've been a public servant — as a state senator, as attorney general and now, as your governor — my approach has been pretty simple.

Bring folks together.

Hash things out.

Find solutions.

Now, we all know the folks in this room have differences of opinion.

And we all know we'll have some disagreements.

But it's worth remembering that we all serve the people of Missouri.

All of your constituents are my constituents... and the common good is our common goal.

I'd like to close tonight with the words of a native son.

He's been a strong and steadfast servant of the people, and a champion for Missouri commerce, education and agriculture for more than 40 years: Senator Christopher S. Bond.

Here's what Kit had to say last month, in his farewell address on the Senate floor:

"In a world today, where enemies are real ... it is important to remember there is a lot of real estate between a political opponent and a true enemy.

There will be issues where people of good conscience cannot come together.

But never let what cannot be done, interfere with what can be done."

In the days and weeks ahead, let us take those words to heart, and act on them in good faith.

Let us do what can be done... what must be done ... for the people of Missouri.

God bless Missouri.

God bless America.

Thank you, and good evening.

On motion of Senator Dempsey, the Joint Session was dissolved and the Senators returned to the Chamber where they were called to order by President Pro Tem Mayer.

NINTH DAY—THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 2011

---

The Senate met pursuant to adjournment.

President Kinder in the Chair.

Reverend Carl Gauck offered the following prayer:

“As we have therefor opportunity, let us do good unto all men.” (Galatians 6:10)

Almighty God, show us where to best express our concerns and kindness that we might be instruments of service and help to those You have called us to serve and have placed in our lives. Guide us this day so that we might make the best use of our time and ride with us as we travel back to those we love bringing us safely home. In Your Holy Name we pray. Amen.

The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag was recited.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS

Senator Munzlinger offered the following concurrent resolution:

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 6

WHEREAS, U.S. and Missouri agriculture has an impressive track record of successfully addressing the economic and market-based issues associated with coexistence, whether via neighbor-to-neighbor or through state seed certifying agencies or other local, state or regional initiatives; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has indicated that it may deregulate genetically-engineered alfalfa with certain conditions in an effort to protect organic growers' claims of potential harm. The American Farm Bureau and several other grower-based organizations strongly believe that such a conditional deregulation is not science-based, and would restrict or even eliminate the use of a valuable tool from growers in many parts of this country; and

WHEREAS, in the field of agricultural biotechnology, Missouri growers have worked closely with the seed industry to meet their respective stewardship obligations through contractual arrangements and other mechanisms, which is where matters of coexistence and stewardship are addressed most effectively and efficiently; and

WHEREAS, the National Alfalfa and Forage Alliance developed its Best Management Practices for Roundup Ready Alfalfa seed production in 2008 and has taken the lead in providing coexistence documents for alfalfa hay export markets, alfalfa seed export markets, and organic alfalfa seed and hay markets; and

WHEREAS, issues of coexistence are always best dealt with farmer-to-farmer, and any proposals to change federal policy on agricultural biotechnology regulation must be done through a thoughtful dialogue inclusive of all U.S. government agencies:

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the members of the Missouri Senate, Ninety-sixth General Assembly, First Regular Session, the House of Representatives concurring therein, hereby urge the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture and the U.S. Department of Agriculture to make regulatory decisions based on sound science and to deregulate genetically-engineered alfalfa without any conditions as soon as possible to enable alfalfa farmers in Missouri and other states to have access to genetically-engineered alfalfa seeds in time for the spring planting season; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Secretary of the Senate be instructed to prepare a properly inscribed copy of this resolution to the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, each member of the Missouri Congressional delegation, and the director of the Missouri Department of Agriculture.

Notwithstanding the above table, two consecutive sets of tandem axles may carry a gross load of thirty-four thousand pounds each if the overall distance between the first and last axles of such consecutive sets of tandem axles is thirty-six feet or more.

4. Whenever the state highways and transportation commission finds that any state highway bridge in the state is in such a condition that use of such bridge by vehicles of the weights specified in subsection 3 of this section will endanger the bridge, or the users of the bridge, the commission may establish maximum weight limits and speed limits for vehicles using such bridge. The governing body of any city or county may grant authority by act or ordinance to the state highways and transportation commission to enact the limitations established in this section on those roadways within the purview of such city or county. Notice of the weight limits and speed limits established by the commission shall be given by posting signs at a conspicuous place at each end of any such bridge.

5. Nothing in this section shall be construed as permitting lawful axle loads, tandem axle loads or gross loads in excess of those permitted under the provisions of Section 127 of Title 23 of the United States Code.

6. Notwithstanding the weight limitations contained in this section, any vehicle or combination of vehicles operating on highways other than the interstate highway system may exceed single axle, tandem axle and gross weight limitations in an amount not to exceed two thousand pounds. However, total gross weight shall not exceed eighty thousand pounds, except as provided in subsection 9 of this section.

7. Notwithstanding any provision of this section to the contrary, the department of transportation shall issue a single-use special permit, or upon request of the owner of the truck or equipment, shall issue an annual permit, for the transporting of any concrete pump truck or well-drillers' equipment. The department of transportation shall set fees for the issuance of permits pursuant to this subsection. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 301.133, concrete pump trucks or well-drillers' equipment may be operated on state-maintained roads and highways at any time on any day.

8. Notwithstanding the provision of this section to the contrary, the maximum gross vehicle limit and axle weight limit for any vehicle or combination of vehicles equipped with an idle reduction technology may be increased by a quantity necessary to compensate for the additional weight of the idle reduction system as provided for in 23 U.S.C. Section 127, as amended. In no case shall the additional weight increase allowed by this subsection be greater than four hundred pounds. Upon request by an appropriate law enforcement officer, the vehicle operator shall provide proof that the idle reduction technology is fully functional at all times and that the gross weight increase is not used for any purpose other than for the use of idle reduction technology.

9. Notwithstanding subsection 3 of this section or any other provision of law to the contrary, the total gross weight of any vehicle or combination of vehicles hauling livestock may be as much as, but shall not exceed, eighty-five thousand five hundred pounds while operating on U.S. Highway 36 from St. Joseph to U.S. Highway 65, and on U.S. Highway 65 from the Iowa state line to U.S. Highway 36.

10. Notwithstanding subsection 3 of this section or any other provision of law to the contrary, for the period between October fifteenth and December fifteenth of each year, any motor vehicle or combination of motor vehicles carrying agricultural products may operate with a load that exceeds the maximum weight load permitted by this chapter by ten percent on any tandem axle, group of axles, and gross weight. If enforcement action is taken pursuant to this section, the fine or penalty shall only apply to that portion of the load that is more than ten percent above the legal limit. The weight tolerance authorized in this subsection shall apply to all highways within the state of Missouri except for the interstate highway system. As used in this subsection, the term “agricultural products” shall have the same meaning ascribed to it in section 274.020.”; and

[145.011. A tax is imposed on the transfer of every decedent's estate which consists in whole or in part of property having a tax situs within the state of Missouri. The Missouri estate tax shall be the maximum credit for state death taxes allowed by Internal Revenue Code Section 2011 but not less than the maximum credit for state death taxes allowable to the estate of a decedent against the federal estate tax by Section 2011 or any other provision of the laws of the United States.]

[145.041. If the decedent's estate contains property having a tax situs not within the state of Missouri, then the tax determined by section 145.011 shall be reduced to an amount determined by multiplying the tax by a fraction whose numerator is the gross estate excluding all property having a tax situs not within the state of Missouri at the decedent's death and whose denominator is the gross estate. In determining the fraction, no deductions shall be considered and the gross estate shall not be reduced by a mortgage or other indebtedness for which the decedent's estate is not liable.]

[145.051. The liability imposed by sections 145.011 to 145.995 shall be paid by the executor.]

[145.091. Any term used in sections 145.011 to 145.995 shall have the same meaning as when used in a comparable context in the laws of the United States, unless a different meaning is clearly required by the provisions of sections 145.011 to 145.995. Any reference in sections 145.011 to 145.995 to the Internal Revenue Code or other laws of the United States shall mean the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, and amendments thereto, and other provisions of the laws of the United States, as they may be or become effective, at any time or from time to time.]

[145.101. 1. "Executor" means the executor or administrator of the decedent, or, if there is no executor or administrator, then any person in actual or constructive possession of any property of the decedent.

2. "Nonresident" means an individual who is not a resident.

3. "Resident" means an individual who is domiciled in this state at the time of death.

4. "State" means any state or territory of the United States and the District of Columbia.]

[145.102. Property shall have a tax situs within the state of Missouri if:

(1) It is real estate or tangible personal property and has actual situs within the state of Missouri; or

(2) It is intangible personal property and the decedent was a resident.]

[145.201. When the director of revenue claims that a decedent was domiciled in this state at the time of his death and the taxing authorities of another state or states make a like claim on behalf of their state or states, the director may make a written agreement of compromise with the other taxing authorities and the executor that a certain sum shall be accepted in full satisfaction of any and all death taxes imposed by this state, including any interest or penalties to the date of filing the agreement. The agreement shall also fix the amount to be accepted by the other states in full satisfaction of death taxes. The executor is hereby authorized to make such agreement. The director shall assess the agreed tax and the tax shall be deemed conclusively fixed as therein provided. Unless the tax is paid within ninety days after filing the agreement, interest shall accrue upon the amount fixed in the agreement from the time of the decedent's death.]

[145.301. If an executor or other fiduciary receives a discharge pursuant to Internal Revenue Code Section 2204 (a) or (b) and if the fiduciary makes written application to the director of revenue for determination of the amount of the tax and discharge from personal liability, the director within two months after receiving satisfactory evidence of the Section 2204 discharge, but not after the expiration of the period prescribed for the assessment of the tax in section 145.711, shall notify the fiduciary of the amount of the tax. The fiduciary, on payment of the amount of which he is notified (other than any amount the time payment of which is extended under section 145.551), and on furnishing any bond which may be required for any amount for which the time for payment is extended, shall be discharged from personal liability for any deficiency in tax thereafter found to be due and shall be entitled to a receipt or writing showing the discharge.]

[145.481. A tax return with respect to the tax imposed by sections 145.011 to 145.995 shall be made:

(1) With respect to a resident, by every executor who is required to file a federal estate tax return;

A person required to make and file a return under sections 145.011 to 145.995 shall without assessment, notice, or demand, pay any tax due thereon to the director of revenue on or before the date fixed for filing such return (determined without regard to any extension of time for filing the return). The director shall prescribe the place for filing any return, declaration, statement, or other document required pursuant to this chapter and for the payment of any tax.]

[145.551. 1. The director of revenue may grant a reasonable extension of time for payment of tax, or for filing any return, declaration, statement, or other document required by sections 145.011 to 145.995 on such terms and conditions as he may require. No extension for filing any return, declaration, statement or document shall exceed six months.

2. If a taxpayer has been granted an extension of time for filing the federal estate tax return, the filing of a copy of the extension with the director of revenue shall automatically extend the due date of the tax return required by sections 145.011 to 145.995.

3. If a taxpayer has been granted an extension of time for paying any portion of the federal estate tax, the filing of a copy of the extension with the director of revenue shall automatically extend the time for the payment of the tax or a portion of the tax required by sections 145.011 to 145.995 to the applicable limitations specified in Internal Revenue Code Section 2011(c) or 2015. The portion of the Missouri estate tax which is subject to deferral or payable in installments shall be determined by multiplying the total Missouri estate tax payable by a fraction, the numerator of which is the gross value of those assets of the decedent's estate having a taxable situs in Missouri which qualify for deferred or installment payment under Internal Revenue Code Section 6161, 6163, or 6166, and the denominator of which is the gross value of all assets of the decedent's estate having a taxable situs in Missouri. For purposes of this section, the value of property shall be that determined for federal estate tax purposes. Deferred payments and installment payments with interest shall be paid at the same time and in the same manner as payments of the federal estate tax are required to be made under the applicable sections of the Internal Revenue Code. Acceleration of payments under this section shall occur under the same circumstances and in the same manner as provided in Internal Revenue Code Section 6166(g). During such extension, interest shall accrue and become due annually on the Missouri estate tax at the same rate as provided in Section 6601 of Title 26, United States Code for the extension of federal estate taxes during the same period.

If more than one rate is applicable to amounts owed by a taxpayer under the federal estate tax during such period of extension, the same rates shall apply to the Missouri estate tax, and in the same proportion in which such rates are applicable to the amount owed under the federal estate tax attributable to assets having a taxable situs in Missouri. After the period of extension for the payment of Missouri estate taxes has expired, interest shall accrue as provided in section 143.731.]

[145.552. Unless the decedent otherwise directs by will, if any part of the decedent's gross estate for federal estate tax purposes consists of property the value of which is includable in the gross estate by reason of Internal Revenue Code section 2044, the decedent's estate shall be entitled to recover from the person receiving the property the amount by which the total Missouri estate tax paid exceeds the total Missouri estate tax which would have been payable if the value of such property had not been included in the gross estate. For purposes of this section, if there is more than one person receiving the property, the right of recovery shall be against each such person, based on his pro rata share of the property received. Further, for purposes of this section, interest and penalties attributable to additional Missouri estate tax on property described in this section shall be treated as additional Missouri estate tax which the decedent's estate shall be entitled to recover in accordance with the provisions of this section.]

[145.601. If the amount of a taxpayer's federal taxable estate, adjusted taxable gifts, or credit for state death taxes reported on his federal estate tax return is changed or corrected by the United States Internal Revenue Service or other competent authority, the taxpayer shall report the change or correction within ninety days after the final determination of the change or correction or as otherwise required by the director of revenue. Each report shall state whether and wherein the determination is believed to be erroneous. Any taxpayer filing an amended federal estate tax return shall also file within ninety days thereafter an amended return under sections 145.011 to 145.995 and shall give such information as the director of revenue may require. The imposition of an additional tax by Internal Revenue Code Section 2032A shall constitute a change. The director of revenue may by regulation prescribe exceptions to the requirements of this section as he deems appropriate.]

[145.711. 1. Except as otherwise provided in this section, a notice of deficiency shall be mailed to the taxpayer within three years after the return was filed. No deficiency shall be assessed or collected unless the notice is mailed within the three-year period or the period otherwise fixed.

2. If no return is filed or a false and fraudulent return is filed with intent to evade the tax imposed by sections 145.011 to 145.995, a notice of deficiency may be mailed to the taxpayer at any time.

3. If a taxpayer fails to comply with the requirements of section 145.601 by not reporting a change or correction or by not filing an amended return, a notice of deficiency may be mailed to the taxpayer within one year after the director of revenue shall become aware of the determination. A notice under this subsection shall be limited to the effects on the Missouri estate tax of the issues on which the federal determination is based.

4. If the taxpayer shall, pursuant to section 145.601, report a change or correction or file an amended return or report a change or correction which is treated in the same manner as if it were a deficiency for federal estate tax purposes, the assessment (if not deemed to have been made upon the filing of the report or amended return) may be made at any time within one year after the report or amended return was filed. A notice under this subsection shall be limited in the manner provided in subsection 3 of this section.

5. Where, before the expiration of the time prescribed in this section for the assessment of a deficiency, both the director of revenue and the taxpayer shall have consented in writing to its assessment after such time, the deficiency may be assessed at any time prior to the expiration of period agreed upon. The period so agreed may be extended by subsequent agreement in writing made before the expiration of the period previously agreed upon.

6. For purposes of this section a return filed before the last day prescribed by law or by regulation promulgated pursuant to law for the filing thereof shall be deemed to be filed on such last day.]

[145.801. 1. A claim for credit or refund of an overpayment of any tax imposed by sections 145.011 to 145.995 shall be filed by the taxpayer within three years from the time the return was filed or two years from the time the tax was paid, whichever of the periods expires the later; or if no return was filed by the taxpayer, within two years from the time the tax was paid. No credit or refund shall be allowed or made after the expiration of the period of limitation prescribed in this subsection for the filing of a claim for credit or refund, unless a claim for credit or refund is filed by the taxpayer within the period.

2. If the claim is filed by the taxpayer during the three-year period prescribed in subsection 1, the amount of the credit or refund shall not exceed the portion of the tax paid within the three years immediately preceding the filing of the claim plus the period of any extension of time for filing the return. If the claim is not filed within the three-year period, but is filed within the two-year period, the amount of the credit or refund shall not exceed the portion of the tax paid during the two years immediately preceding the filing of the claim. If no claim is filed, the credit or refund shall not exceed the amount which would be allowable under either of the preceding sentences, as the case may be, if a claim was filed on the date the credit or refund is allowed.

3. If pursuant to subsection 5 of section 145.711 an agreement for an extension of the period for assessment is made within the period prescribed in subsection 1 of this section for the filing of a claim for credit or refund, the period for filing a claim for credit or for making a credit or refund if no claim is filed, shall not expire prior to six months after the expiration of the period within which an assessment may be made pursuant to the agreement or any extension. The amount of the credit or refund shall not exceed the portion of the tax paid after the execution of the agreement and before the filing of the claim or the making of the credit or refund, as the case may be, plus the portion of the tax paid within the period which would be applicable under subsection 1 of this section if a claim had been filed on the date the agreement was executed.

4. If a taxpayer is required by section 145.601 to report a change or correction which is treated in the same manner as if it were an overpayment for federal estate tax purposes, an amended return or a claim for credit or refund of any resulting overpayment of tax shall be filed by the taxpayer within one year from the time the notice of such change or correction or such amended return was required to be filed with the director of revenue. If the report or amended return required by section 145.601 is not filed within the ninety-day period therein specified, interest on any resulting refund or credit shall cease to accrue after the ninetieth day. The amount of such credit or refund shall not exceed the amount of the reduction in Missouri estate tax attributable to the effect of the issues on which the federal change or correction or the items amended on the taxpayer's amended federal estate tax return are based.]

[145.846. An application for review of the director of revenue's determination pursuant to sections 145.011 to 145.995 shall be filed by the executor with the administrative hearing commission under section 621.050.]

[145.871. The courts of this state shall recognize and enforce liabilities for estate and transfer taxes lawfully imposed by any state which extends a like comity to this state, and the duly authorized officer of any such state may sue for the collection of such a tax in the courts of this state. A certificate by the secretary of state of the other state that an officer suing for the collection of the tax is duly authorized to collect the tax shall be conclusive proof of such authority. For the purposes of this section, the word "TAXES" shall include additions to tax, interest, and penalties, and liabilities for the taxes, additions to tax, interest, and penalties shall be recognized and enforced by the courts of this state to the same extent that the laws of the other state permit the enforcement in its courts of liability for the taxes, additions to a tax, interest, and penalties due this state under sections 145.011 to 145.995.]

[145.961. 1. The director of revenue shall administer and enforce the tax imposed by sections 145.011 to 145.995 and he is authorized to make such rules and regulations and to require such facts and information to be reported as he may deem necessary to enforce the provisions of sections 145.011 to 145.995.

2. The rules and regulations prescribed by the director of revenue shall follow as nearly as practicable the rules and regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States. This construction of sections 145.011 to 145.995 will further its purposes to simplify the preparation of tax returns, aid in its interpretation through use of federal precedents, and improve its enforcement.]

[145.971. 1. The director of revenue may prescribe the form and contents of any return or other documents, including a copy of part or all of a federal return, required to be filed under the provisions of sections 145.011 to 145.995.

2. The director of revenue for the purpose of ascertaining the corrections of any return, or for the purpose of making an estimate of any person, shall have power to examine or to cause to have examined, by any agent or representative designated by him for that purpose, any books, papers, records, or memoranda bearing upon the matters required to be included in the return, and may require the attendance of the person rendering the return or any officer or employee of such person, or the attendance of any other person having knowledge in the premises, and may take testimony and require proof material for his information, with power to administer oaths to such person or persons.

3. Reports and returns required to be filed under sections 145.011 to 145.995 shall be preserved for four years and thereafter until the director of revenue orders them destroyed.]

[145.985. Except as otherwise specifically provided in sections 145.011 to 145.995, procedural matters under the provisions of sections 145.011 to 145.995 shall be determined pursuant to and in the manner prescribed in the following sections of the revised statutes of

[145.995. 1. A generation-skipping credit tax is imposed on every generation-skipping transfer which consists in whole or in part of property having a tax situs within the state of Missouri. [145.1000. ### CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS

Senator Rupp offered the following concurrent resolution:

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 8

WHEREAS, the United States Army Corps of Engineers' five-year study of the Upper Mississippi River Basin, which is everything north of Cairo, Illinois, failed to produce a plan for flood control acceptable to stakeholders; and

WHEREAS, the Mississippi River Commission did recommend Plan H to the United States Congress; and

WHEREAS, the Corps of Engineers has not recommended this plan to the United States Congress, citing the estimated $6 billion expense of the construction of 500-year levees along these Rivers as not cost effective; and

WHEREAS, the Corps of Engineers additionally determined a need for better data based upon new hydrology and flow studies and the need to study tributaries of the Mississippi River; and

WHEREAS, the Corps of Engineers indicated that ramifications of the additional 500-year levees and their potential to cause additional flooding would need to be determined, and affected populations and communities informed and advised of the potential impact; and

WHEREAS, the affected counties include the Missouri counties of Lincoln, Pike, and St. Charles; and

WHEREAS, Plan H designates only about half of the levees in the Missouri counties of Lincoln, Pike, and St. Charles be raised, while to the north 500-year levees are recommended for both sides of the River; and

WHEREAS, the stakeholders in the Missouri counties of Lincoln, Pike, and St. Charles desire the protections provided by the 500-year levees; and

WHEREAS, Plan H, if implemented, denies the benefits of 500-year levees to those making a living along the Mississippi River, negatively impacting agriculture, transportation, businesses, industries, tourism, hunting, fishing, boating, infrastructure, and residences; and

WHEREAS, over 6,500 citizens have signed petitions opposing Plan H; and

WHEREAS, the Upper Mississippi River Basin should receive funding comparable to funding for the Southern Mississippi River Basin from Cairo, Illinois, to New Orleans, Louisiana:

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the members of the Missouri Senate, Ninety-sixth General Assembly, First Regular Session, the House of Representatives concurring therein, hereby strongly urge the United States Congress to support a comprehensive plan for the Upper Mississippi River Basin that enhances system-wide flood control without creating adverse impacts on existing levees, levee districts, rural communities, and metropolitan areas. The plan should be based on analysis that quantifies the impact of enhanced flood control measures and acknowledges the importance of keeping agricultural land in production. The proposed Plan H making the Missouri counties of Lincoln, Pike, and St. Charles the lowest points on the Mississippi River levee system is totally unacceptable and we ask the Missouri Congressional delegation to oppose this plan; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Secretary of the Missouri Senate be instructed to prepare properly inscribed copies of this resolution for each member of the Missouri Congressional delegation.

Senator Rupp offered the following concurrent resolution:

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 9

Relating to rescinding Missouri's 1983 call for a constitutional convention for the purpose of adopting a balanced budget amendment.

WHEREAS, the Missouri General Assembly, acting with the best of intentions, applied to the Congress of the United States by resolution in accordance with Article V, Constitution of the United States, for a constitutional convention for the purpose of amending the Constitution of the United States; and

WHEREAS, Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 3, was passed by the Eighty-second General Assembly of the State of Missouri in 1983 specifically proposing a constitutional convention for the sole purpose of adopting an amendment requiring a balanced federal budget; and

WHEREAS, over the course of time, the will of the people of the State of Missouri has changed with regards to Missouri's previous call for a constitutional convention to amend the Constitution of the United States; and

WHEREAS, certain persons or states have called for a constitutional convention on issues that may be directly in opposition to the will of the people of this state; and

WHEREAS, the people of this state do not want their previous applications for a constitutional convention to be aggregated with those calls for a convention from other states; and

WHEREAS, former Justice of the United States Supreme Court Warren E. Burger, former Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court Arthur J. Goldberg and many other leading constitutional scholars are in general agreement that a convention, notwithstanding whatever limitation might be placed on it by the call for a convention, may propose sweeping constitutional changes or, by virtue of the authority of a constitutional convention, redraft the Constitution of the United States creating an imminent peril to the well established rights of citizens and to the duties of various levels of government; and

WHEREAS, the Constitution of the United States has been amended many times in the history of this nation and may be amended many more times without the need to resort to a constitutional convention, and has been interpreted for more than two hundred years and found to be a sound document that protects the lives and liberties of citizens; and

WHEREAS, there is no need for, and in fact there is great danger in, a new constitution or in opening the Constitution of the United States to radical changes, the adoption of which could create legal chaos in this nation and begin the process of another two centuries of litigation over its meaning and interpretation; and

WHEREAS, changes or amendments that may be needed in the present Constitution of the United States may be proposed and enacted without resorting to a constitutional convention by using the process provided in the Constitution and previously used throughout the history of this nation:

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the members of the Missouri Senate, Ninety-sixth General Assembly, First Regular Session, the House of Representatives concurring therein, that the Missouri General Assembly hereby repeals, rescinds, cancels, renders null and void and supersedes any and all existing applications to the Congress of the United States for a constitutional convention under Article V of the Constitution of the United States for any purpose, whether limited or general; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Missouri General Assembly urges the legislature of each and every state that has applied to Congress for either a general or limited constitutional convention to repeal and rescind their applications; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Secretary of the Senate be instructed to prepare a properly inscribed copy of this resolution for the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the Administrator of General Services in Washington, D.C., each member of Missouri's Congressional delegation, and the Secretaries of State and presiding officers of both houses of the legislatures of each state in the Union.

Read 1st time.

The Joint Committee appointed to wait upon the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, William Ray Price, Jr., escorted the Chief Justice to the dais where he delivered the State of the Judiciary Address to the Joint Assembly:

Mr. Speaker, Mr. President, Mr. President pro tem, members of the General Assembly: It is my honor to deliver this 38th State of the Judiciary Address.

I never have seen a more challenging time for our state. Regardless of political philosophy, one thing is clear. Significant cuts have been made and will be made to Missouri's budget. To the extent necessary and possible, the courts have shared and will continue to share in budget withholdings without complaint.

The Missouri court system, the third separate but equal constitutional branch of government, operates on less than 2 percent of the state budget. Yet in 2010 we heard more than 171,000 contract cases, 42,000 landlord tenant cases, 17,000 juvenile cases, 12,000 probate cases, 110,000 family and domestic cases, 41,000 felony cases and 115,000 misdemeanor cases. Despite the state's economic condition, whether dipping or hopefully recovering, our work load does not diminish. The court system is a core function of government that must perform, and perform well, for our state to function and thrive.

Don't overlook the obvious. Even in this time of economic challenge, we are still the greatest civilization in the history of human kind; supported by a free market economy that can exist only within the certainty of law. Goods and services can be bought and sold, money can be exchanged, people can plan for the future, but only because they can trust in a fair and impartial court system to protect their property and their rights.

There are two specific concerns I want to talk with you about. I spoke about them last year, and they are still the two most important issues that we face together for the future of Missouri. One calls for action; one does not.

First, we continue to over-incarcerate nonviolent offenders, while we have failed to expand drug courts and other diversionary and reentry programs to capacity. The result is a state that is not as safe as we want it to be and a waste of tax dollars.

From the 1980s, in Missouri and across the nation, we attempted to incarcerate our way out of crime and illegal drug use. We thought just putting people in prison would make them better. We spent billions of dollars and it did not work. We were tough on crime, but we were not smart on crime. Consider these numbers.

In 1982, 612,000 people were behind bars in state prisons across the country. By 2008, that number had risen almost fourfold to 2.3 million people. In 2010, the United States incarcerated a higher share of its population than any other country in the world. The cost has been staggering. State correctional spending, across our country increased from $11.7 billion, in 1988, to $47.3 billion in 2008. (One in 31 The Long Reach of American Corrections, The Pew Center on the States, www.pewcenteronthestates.org; The High Budgetary Cost of Incarceration, Center for Economic and Policy Research, June 2010, www.cepr.net)

In an article published just this January, Stanford law professor Joan Petersilia noted,

What we are seeing today is a growing recognition that our approach to dealing with convicted criminals is simply too costly. Not only is the price too high, but the benefits are too low. The states now spend an estimated $50 billion on corrections annually, and the growth of these outlays over the past 20 years has outpaced budget increases of nearly all other essential government services, including transportation, higher education, and public assistance. (Beyond the Prison Bubble, The Wilson Quarterly, Winter 2011, p.52)

Missouri had 5,953 individuals in state prison in 1982; by 2009 the number had grown fivefold to 30,432, while the population of our state grew only by 21 percent. In that same time period, from 1982 until 2009, our Department of Corrections budget rose from $55 million to $665 million.

It costs more than $16,400 per year to incarcerate an individual, without counting the cost of the prison itself. The cost of building a prison is, at least, $100 million. For violent criminals, who endanger innocent men, women, and children, there may be little choice. But for many of the 14,700 nonviolent offenders, this prison-based strategy is not working and it is costing us an arm and a leg.

The key measurement of the failure of this strategy is the recidivism rate. That is the number of people who are returned to prison after they have been released. In Missouri, 44.6 percent of nonviolent offenders are reincarcerated within two years of release; 52 percent of nonviolent offenders are reincarcerated within three years; and 58.5 percent of non violent offenders are reincarcerated within five years of release. More than one half of the people released from our penitentiaries are returned within five years.

A real life example of recidivism was the 35-year-old St. Joseph man who was arrested for drunk driving on June 16, 2010, just three hours after he was released from prison. (The Kansas City Star, July 17, 2010)

Punishment is a necessary part of our criminal justice system. But our real goal for nonviolent offenders is to teach them their lesson so they can become productive law abiding members of our society. The goal is not to lock them into a life of crime, to make them permanent wards of the state on an installment program of incarceration after incarceration, at $16,400 per year. Newt Gingrich wrote this:

The key to public safety and fiscal sanity is not just getting dangerous people off the streets but also making sure that men and women who eventually leave prison have changed and can stay crime-free on the outside. (Atlanta Journal Constitution, March 23, 2010)

Governor Rick Perry of Texas said it this way,

I believe we can take an approach that is both tough and smart ... [T]here are thousands of non-violent offenders in the system whose future we cannot ignore. Let's focus more resources on rehabilitating those offenders so we can ultimately spend less money locking them up again. (www.rightoncrime.com)

It should be absolutely clear that when half of the nonviolent offenders are returned to prison after release, we have not taught them the right lesson. And, the danger of crime – the millions of dollars of cost to the Missouri taxpayer – goes on and on and on.

Over-incarceration of nonviolent offenders has been a big-government, throw-money-at-the-problem strategy that simply did not and does not work. Despite our tough-on-crime rhetoric, it is time we face reality. Prison is the most expensive and least effective strategy for a significant number of nonviolent offenders. All it does is house them in expensive buildings, guard them with state workers, feed and give them health care paid for with precious state dollars and force them to associate with criminals more dangerous than they are. By spending all of our money on prison, there is not enough left to spend on the alcohol and drug treatment and the education and job training, necessary to break their cycle of crime. Proof is in the numbers: 44.6 percent are back in two years, 58.5 percent are back in five years.

A group called Right on Crime; whose members include Grover Norquist, Edwin Meese and William Bennett, said this:

... the corrections system must align incentives with our goals of public safety, victim restitution and satisfaction, and cost-effectiveness, thereby moving from a system that grows when it fails to one that rewards results. (www.rightoncrime.com)

Professor Petersilia said it this way:

It should not come as a surprise to learn that we have a corrections system that does not correct .... Former prisoners account for an estimated 15 to 20 percent of all arrests among adults. That means thousands of Americans are being victimized every year by criminals who have already done time without experiencing "correction." (Beyond the Prison Bubble, The Wilson Quarterly, Winter 2011, p.53)

There is a better way. All across the country, states are turning to cheaper and more effective alternative sanctions than prison for nonviolent offenders.

Drug courts are one of the best examples of tough, effective, local alternatives to prisons. Depending on the study, between 60 and 80 percent of people in prison are there for drug related crimes or have drug or alcohol issues. Study after study, nationally and in Missouri, show that drug courts are the most effective way to deal with drug and alcohol addicted people at a fraction of the cost of prison. Missouri has more than 9,700 drug court graduates with a minimal recidivism rate.

There are other evidence-based criminal sanction strategies, each matched to the particular risks and characteristics of the offender that also work far less expensively and far more effectively than prison. We need to move from anger-based, prison-focused sentencing that ignores cost and effectiveness to evidence-based alternative sanctions that change troubled lives and focus on results.

With your help, we have expanded drug courts and DWI courts across Missouri. Unfortunately, they are still underfunded by half. We barely have scratched the surface with family drug courts and reentry courts. But I especially want to tell you about two new pilot programs. First, in Jackson, Greene and St. Louis counties and in St. Louis City, we tested a program to divert juveniles from detention facilities. The program reduced detention admissions by approximately 50 percent with better results from the juveniles. The savings from this program will be substantial. We are expanding this program into five additional circuits.

The other pilot program is veterans court. Veterans court focuses on returning veterans whose psychological scars from service lead them to drugs and trouble and sometimes violence when they get home. In St. Louis City, Drug Court Commissioner Jim Sullivan has established a veterans court with 12 participants. Drug Court Commissioner Phil Britt is in the process of establishing a rural veterans court in Butler, Carter, Dunklin, Ripley, Stoddard and Wayne counties with a target population of 20 to 25 veterans. We owe our veterans this kind of help when they need it. But our resources are already stretched thin.

From a moral, a fiscal and a law-and-order perspective, drug courts, DWI courts, juvenile diversion programs, veterans courts, reentry courts and community supervision strategies are better investments of taxpayer money, for their target populations, than prisons.

I want to be absolutely clear. I am not advocating that we reduce prison populations just to save money. Nonviolent offenders are still law breakers, and they will break laws until they learn their lesson. What I am saying is that we need to do a better job teaching nonviolent offenders the right lessons. That takes more than prison, more than slap-on-the-wrist-probation. Drug and alcohol addiction must be broken; discipline and job skills must be learned. When that can be done better, outside of expensive prison walls, that is what we should do. Results matter, public safety matters, taxpayer dollars matter, saving lives and restoring families matter.

I also want to make clear that this is not a management problem at the Department of Corrections. Director Lombardi, his staff, and the probation and parole officers of this state, are excellent and dedicated public servants. Because of their leadership and because of the nearly 3,000 drug court diversions each year, we have avoided building at least two new prisons. That is, at least, $200 million of avoided costs, just for the buildings; let alone the tens of millions of dollars of operational costs. Missouri has started in the right direction. But we need to go farther and to do better.

The people of America are ready for a change. A poll taken last September showed that 86 percent of Americans agreed that “We have too many low risk, nonviolent offenders in prison. We need alternatives to incarceration that cost less and save our expensive prison space for violent and career criminals.” Eighty-nine percent of Americans agreed that “Ninety-five percent of people in prison will be released. If we are serious about public safety, we must increase access to treatment and job training programs so they can become productive citizens once they are back in the community.” And 84 percent of Americans agreed that “Prisons are a government program, and just like any other government program they need to be put to the cost-benefit test to make sure taxpayers are getting the best bang for their buck.” (Public Attitudes on Crime and Punishment, The Pew Center on the States, www.pewcenteronthestates.org)

We need to expand our existing diversionary treatment court programs. We need to require as a condition for early release from prison, education or job training and drug treatment, if needed. We need to establish a more robust program for reentry supervision for those who are released. The reduction in the number of nonviolent offenders in our prisons will more than fund these efforts. We need to be tough and smart on crime.

The second major issue that I want to talk with you about is a fair and impartial judiciary. Solomon is the example of the greatest judge. When he first became King of Israel, the Revised Standard Version of the Bible says he asked the Lord for “an understanding mind to govern thy people, that I may discern between good and evil.” The New Jerusalem Bible and most other translations have Solomon asking for an understanding “heart,” instead.

I never have worried about this difference in translation, because both are true. A good judge needs an understanding mind and an understanding heart to find justice.

It is not easy finding justice. Justice isn’t a physical thing that you can touch or hold or measure. Often it is shaped by the eye of the beholder and, often, relative to the beholder’s particular point of view. What seems just to one may seem unjust to another.

A good judge must have the courage to accept that not all people will see justice as he or she does. Sometimes, a good judge must have the courage to risk the anger of the majority, to protect the rights of the individual – rights that we prize and that are guaranteed by our national and state constitutions. That is why Alexander Hamilton said the “independence of the judges is ... requisite to guard the Constitution and the rights of individuals.” (The Federalist #78)

Our job is different than yours. You serve the majority. You make broad policy decisions that apply to everyone. You make campaign promises and are expected to uphold them. If something does not work, if it is worded incorrectly, or if the will of the majority changes, you can change your laws year by year.

Our job is more limited. We rule individual case by individual case. Whether it is a case for a business fighting for its economic life, a crippled plaintiff who no longer can support himself, parents fighting for the custody of a loved child, or a person accused of a crime with his liberty or life at stake, we rule individual case by individual case, with each individual having only that one chance for justice. In every case, someone loses. Fairness, impartiality, and a level playing field, not subject to outside influence or manipulation, not dependent upon a preexisting promise, are the absolute necessity.

With this in mind, we need to talk about the Missouri Plan for selecting judges. The plan was adopted by the people of Missouri by initiative petition in 1940. It was in response to the Pendergast political machine’s attempt to control the Supreme Court of Missouri. It was a plan established by the people to protect their courts from political manipulation and control.

For those of you who are new to the legislature, let me explain how the Missouri Plan works. For vacancies on the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals, there is a seven-member commission. The commission is made up of three lawyers elected by lawyers from the eastern, western and southern districts of the state. The lawyers’ role is to safeguard the professional quality of the candidates. The lawyers serve staggered six-year terms. The commission also has three members who cannot be lawyers, appointed by the governor, again for staggered six-year terms. They evaluate the candidates from the point of view of regular citizens of Missouri. To the extent these commissioners are appointed by the governor, they reflect the political mood of the state. Finally the chief justice of the Supreme Court serves on the commission. In my experience, the chief justice functions neither as a lawyer, nor as a lay person, but as a representative of the judicial system as a whole. The nominating commission for trial judges in Jackson, Clay, Platte, Greene and St. Louis counties and St. Louis City has one fewer lawyer and non-lawyer, and the presiding judge of the local court of appeals replaces the chief justice.

The commission evaluates the applicants. It screens out those who from a legal or any other point of view might not be the best choice to serve as a judge and selects the three candidates the commission believes would be best. The governor may appoint any of the three individuals submitted to him, for any reason. The governor’s appointee begins to serve immediately but is subject to a retention vote of the people at the next general election after a year of service, and again, every 12 years thereafter. Missouri Plan judges are accountable directly to the people.
